Required Materials

For this course, access to the LaunchPad course homework and e-book website for Paul Krugman and Robin Wells' Principles of Macroeconomics is required.

To sign up, please visit macmillanhighered.com/launchpad/krugmanwellsmodulesmacro3/1209345.

You are able to get temporary access to the class that will last 21 days if you are deciding whether to take this course. Choose that option while signing up if this appeals to you. A more detailed 'how-to' is available at my website.

Feel free to purchase a hard-copy textbook on top of the e-book if you like the feel of paper between your fingers.

You are also required to have a 'clicker' for the course to answer in-class questions. One can be obtained at the Bookstore, and can be used for any other courses that require them during the rest of your studies.

Recitations

Attending recitation is an important part of success in the course. It provides an opportunity for you to work through the material in a smaller class. You should already be signed up and ready to attend one of the following recitations. There are no recitations the first week of school.
